Background (1/2)

Over the last few years, as antisemitism has worsened in the United States and around the world, it has become abundantly clear that education about Jews, Judaism, and the Jewish experience, including Israel and the Holocaust, in non-Jewish K-12 educational spaces is critically important. (Note that we will use the phrase 'Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education' to describe this work.)

In conversations with dozens of Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education practitioners and funders over the last several months, we consistently heard a desire for a robust landscape scan and field mapping that more clearly delineates who is doing what in the K-12 space. These ideas were reiterated at the Think-Practice Tank convened by The Collaboratory: A Center for Jewish Education at George Washington University in July 2024. To that end, a group of practitioners and funders embarked on a comprehensive effort to collect standardized information about the various practitioners in the field – their activities, core competencies, and value propositions – by developing and deploying a field-wide survey. The survey was disseminated through both formal distribution lists and informal networks, and open to any organization that met the criteria outlined below. The survey was in the field from late September until mid-October 2024.

Specifically, this mapping effort focused on the following:

- Target Audience: The ecosystem mapping effort was designed to include any organization currently engaged in Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education work in the United States (i.e., education about Jews, Judaism, the Jewish experience, Israel, the Holocaust, etc. in formal non-Jewish K-12 educational spaces).
 - While we recognize the importance of broad engagement, this mapping effort was not intended to cover work with youth outside of formal K-12 settings ('informal education') or education work that focuses specifically on Jewish youth (e.g., support for Jewish day schools).
- Content: The ecosystem mapping effort primarily focused on work that is already underway, though respondents had an opportunity to outline work that is in development or planned for the future.

We have synthesized responses from the survey into an ecosystem report presented here and available on One8's website (www.One8.org/AntisemitismResearch), with the hope of fostering more strategic alignment and deepening impact across organizations. In this report, you will find summary takeaways, as well as deep dives into each Jewish Identity and History topic area and a single slide overview of each organization that participated in the survey. There are many abbreviations used throughout; please refer to the Reference slide at the start of the Appendix for more details.

This Mapping reflects the self-reported Jewish Identity and History Education work of those organizations that chose to respond to the survey. We recognize that it does not represent an exhaustive landscape of all organizations involved in the ecosystem. It also does not cover any organizational work not related to Jewish Identity and History topics. Further, organizational responses were not triangulated or vetted, and findings may evolve in the future as additional organizations are added and existing organizations adjust their work. We intend for this ecosystem report to be updated in the future; if your organization would like to be included in the next round of survey dissemination and analysis, please contact Alyssa Arens (aarens@one8.org).

Who We Are: The One8 Foundation is a venture philanthropy that works side-by-side with grantee partners to create social change. Our grantmaking priorities are founded in the abiding belief that education is the doorway to individual success and self-determination, and anchored in the Jewish values of human dignity, repairing the world, and building caring communities of meaning and purpose. We have robust Jewish Life & Israel portfolios focused on making Judaism accessible, increasing understanding of Israel, addressing antisemitism, and supporting Israel to be a thriving Jewish democracy. Through our Education portfolio, we support best-in-class STEM and Applied Learning education nonprofits to transform classroom learning in Massachusetts. We support partners with planning assistance and real time problem-solving, devising multi-year scale plans that deliver impact and the funding to make it happen. We expand schools' ability to access these programs by providing grants to schools that offset the costs of adopting new programs. We currently partner with nearly 700 schools in Massachusetts, reaching over 230K students.

Executive Summary (1/3)

The Ecosystem Report represents survey responses from 72 different organizations that engage in Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education work (note that some organizations provided partial responses, so the number of respondents differs by question).

The following summary-level takeaways emerged, and each takeaway is explored more deeply in a subsequent section of the report:

Robust, Diverse, Experienced, Connected, Yet Fragmented Field

 - Respondents represent multiple organizational types, including Content and/or Training Providers (42%); Museums, Memorials, and/or Exhibits (31%); Local JCRCs and/or Federations (21%); and Funders and/or Intermediaries (7%)
 - A small subset (14%) are solely focused on K-12 Ed.; the majority noted that K-12 Ed. is one of many org focus areas
 - Most providers engage in multiple K-12 strategies; resource development (i.e., Content and/or PD) is most common
 - Most orgs have been involved in Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Ed. work for 10+ years (64%), while 14% are new to the space (<2yrs); 62% focus on a specific geography, with a heavy concentration in NY and CA, while 38% are national
 - Many orgs collaborate, though there may be an ongoing need to share knowledge and reduce duplication
High Degree of Overlapping Resource Coverage...

 - There is significant resource coverage (teaching resources, direct-to-student resources and/or teacher PD resources) for the Holocaust & Antisemitism (historic and present-day), with these topics also having the most extensive offerings
 - A high proportion of organizations target High School courses with resources, while Middle School courses are slightly less frequently targeted; Social Studies courses are most commonly targeted, followed by English Language Arts courses
- ...Yet Some Gaps in K-12 Offerings...

 - Conversely, fewer organizations offer dedicated resources on topics related to Judaism, Jewish identity (both American and global) or Israel (Ancient Israel, the Arab-Israeli conflict, and Zionism/State of Israel), and these topics tend to have fewer robust resources available. This may not indicate a need for more resources, but an opportunity for more organizations to integrate existing high-quality content into their resources and share with their networks
 - The majority of PD offerings are synchronous (in-person, live virtual trainings); fewer organizations offer asynchronous options for teachers to view on-demand (e.g., pre-recorded virtual trainings, bite-sized videos)
- ...and Opportunity to Increase Reach

 - Among organizations reporting direct-to-student reach numbers, 15 organizations engaged more than 10,000 students each with relevant content last school year; among organizations reporting teacher reach numbers, 11 reported reaching more than 1,000 teachers each with relevant training and support last school year
 - Significant scale among some providers suggests appetite among potential target audiences for content, and there may also be opportunity for providers to increase their annual reach, given growing need across the country

High Degree of Overlapping Resource Coverage, Yet Some Gaps in K-12 Offerings

*Includes organizations that create teaching resources and/or direct-to-student resources

Executive Summary (3/3)

The Ecosystem Report represents survey responses from 72 different organizations that engage in Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education work (note that some organizations provided partial responses, so the number of respondents differs by question).

The following summary-level takeaways emerged, and each takeaway is explored more deeply in a subsequent section of the report:

Nascent Impact Evaluation, with Opportunities for Improvement

- Organizations' K-12 evaluation frameworks vary significantly in quality and specificity; while some organizations have robust evaluation frameworks that guide their K-12 education efforts (i.e., specific outcomes with aligned metrics), many organizations seem to rely on outputs or qualitative feedback as their primary indicators of success
- Even organizations that are focused on a similar outcome (e.g., mitigating antisemitism) define their desired results very differently (e.g., knowledge of antisemitism, willingness to act, decreased incidents of antisemitism, etc.)
- Encouragingly, many organizations expressed a desire to strengthen their organizational muscles around impact evaluation (e.g., more rigorous pre/post evaluation measures with teachers and/or students that track impact on knowledge, attitudes and/or behaviors), and are interested in working with others in the field to do so

Non-Resource K-12 Strategies are Less Common, but Important

- In addition to resource development, some organizations engage in other K-12 strategies. These include Advocacy (39% of respondents), Convenings (31% of respondents) and Content Reviews (19% of respondents)
- While fewer organizations pursue non-resource development strategies for their Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education work as they are not within their mandates, they appear to be an important part of the work for the organizations that employ these strategies

Potential Opportunities For Greater Impact

Given findings, there are multiple potential opportunities for greater impact

1) Strengthen The Field to Reduce Duplication and Fragmentation

- It is clear that there are dozens of high-quality providers operating in the field of Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education, that some providers are reaching thousands of students and/or teachers annually, and that there is a rich array of resources and content available for student and teacher use on Jewish identity and history-related topics
- At the same time, our findings suggest the landscape is highly diffused and fragmented, with many organizations offering a significant amount of potentially overlapping content on key topics
- While partnerships and collaborations already exist, improved coordination and knowledge sharing appears essential to reduce duplicative efforts

2) Deepen Focus on Specific, Measurable Outcomes and Rigorous Impact Evaluation

- Our findings suggest that there is more work to be done at organizational- and field-levels to articulate a clear vision and specific, measurable intended outcomes for high-quality education on Jewish identity and history-related topics; to identify the specific core concepts that should be addressed to achieve progress against these outcomes; to ensure the availability of high-quality content across these concepts; and to then rigorously evaluate the impact of existing efforts
- A strategic commitment to measurement and evaluation across the field will be critical in order to identify and scale the highest-quality, most impactful interventions and resources that reduce antisemitism and promote Jewish inclusion and safety

3) Consider Demand and Implementation

- The field should continue to consider the many constraints and competing priorities that teachers and administrators face when offering education on Jewish identity and history-related topics
- Providers should be laser-focused on creating resources that reflect what educators want, need, and are willing to use; on optimizing the highest-quality resources that already exist, rather than crowding the marketplace by adding new resources; and on articulating specific target audience(s) for their unique offerings
- Navigation is an enormous issue for educators, who find it difficult to find quality resources and discern which are suitable for the number of hours they teach, the subject they teach, and their teaching objectives. Many teachers source content by searching online, a reality that can compromise finding suitable high-quality content. Providers must therefore be dogged about identifying the best distribution strategies to ensure high-quality, high-fidelity implementation of their resources

Section 1: Robust, Diverse, Experienced, Connected, Yet Fragmented Field

Key Takeaways (see following slides for full detail)

Robust, Yet Fragmented

- 72 organizations completed the Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education Ecosystem Mapping survey and are included in this report
- Respondents represent multiple organizational types, including Content and/or Training Providers (30, 42%); Museums, Memorials, and/or Exhibits (22, 31%); local JCRCs and/or Federations (15, 21%); and Funders and/or Intermediaries (5, 7%)

Diverse

- 10 providers (14%) are solely focused on K-12 Education; for the vast majority (62, 86%) of respondents, K-12 is one of many organizational strategies that they pursue
- About half of orgs (39, 54%) also focus on non-Jewish Identity and History topics in their K-12 work
- Orgs engage in multiple K-12 strategies; resource development (i.e., Content or PD) is most common
- The majority of organizations (45, 62%) focus on a specific target geography with their K-12 Ed. work, with a heavy concentration focused in New York and California; 27 orgs (38%) are national only

Experienced

- 46 organizations (64%) have been involved in K-12 Education work for more than 10 years
- 10 organizations (14%) have been engaged in K-12 Education work for less than 2 years; organizations that function primarily as Content and/or Training Providers and local JCRCs and/or Federations are more likely to be newer to the space compared to others

Connected

- Connections and collaborations are common in the ecosystem; almost all respondents cited some form of partnership in the survey response, whether with community organizations, schools, content providers, and/or other members of the Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education ecosystem
- Across all survey responses, dozens of organizations were cited as partners, with 6 national providers cited most frequently (10+ mentions each)

72 organizations are included in the Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education mapping; respondents can be categorized into 4 primary types

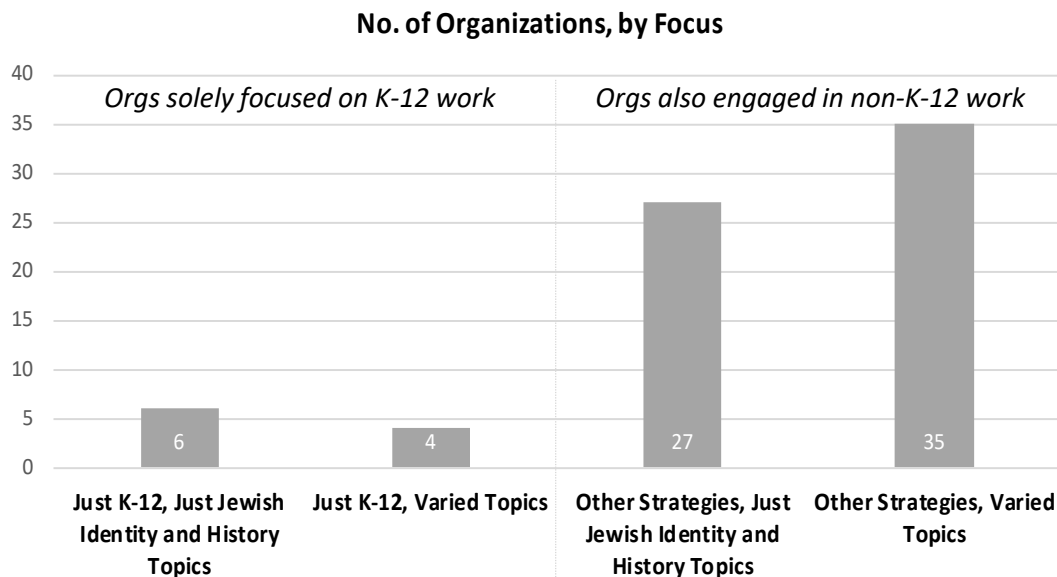

Key Takeaways

- 72 organizations completed the survey and are included in the Ecosystem Mapping report (note that some organizations provided partial responses, so the number of respondents differs by question)
- To support analysis, One8 categorized all organizations into four types:
 - Majority of respondents are categorized as a Content and/or Training Provider (30, 42%) or Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit (22, 31%)
 - Smaller number of organizations are classified as a local JCRC and/or Federation (15, 21%) or a Funder and/or Intermediary (5, 7%)

*See Appendix for full provider list and individual provider profiles; note that a 73rd organization completed the survey but indicated that the entirety of their work focuses on education for Jewish youth, so their answers were excluded from analysis, and that one of the 72 respondents asked to not be publicly named in the report

10 providers focus solely on K-12 Education; the vast majority (86%) of organizations note that K-12 is one of many strategies that they pursue

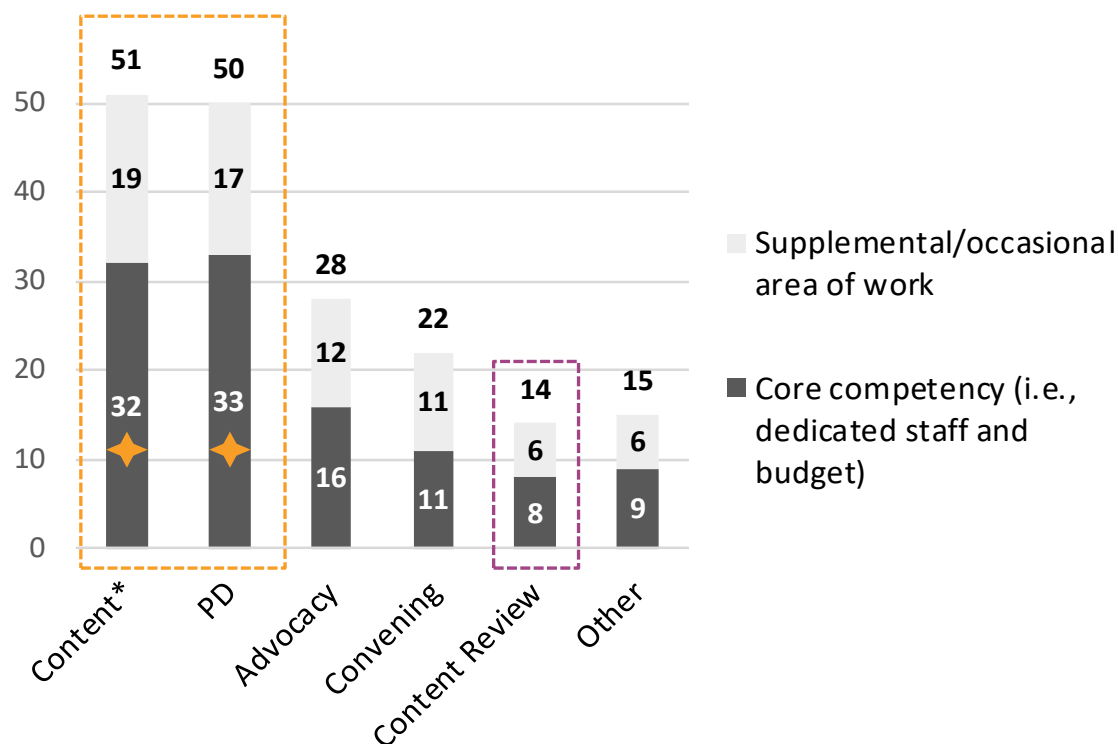

★ Content and/or Training Provider	★ 4	★ 4	★ 8	★ 14
▲ Museum, Memorial, and/or Exhibit	▲ 1		▲ 5	▲ 16
● Local JCRC and/or Federation			● 10	● 5
■ Funder and/or Intermediary	■ 1		■ 4

Key Takeaways

- 10 respondents (14%) focus solely on K-12 work; the majority of these organizations are national Content and/or Training Providers (e.g., Echoes & Reflections, Facing History & Ourselves, Institute for Curriculum Services)
- 62 organizations (86%) do work beyond K-12 Education; of these, 39 still list K-12 as a top 3 priority for the organization
- About half of respondents (39, 54%) focus on other topics in addition to Jewish Identity and History topics; these topics include:
 - Inclusion and anti-bias
 - Other genocides
 - Other communities impacted by the Holocaust
 - Human rights and social justice
 - Arts
 - Media literacy
 - Local history

Organizations typically engage in multiple K-12 strategies; resource development (i.e., Content and/or PD) is the most common

No. of Organizations, by Key K-12 Strategies
(core competency or supplemental area)

Key Takeaways

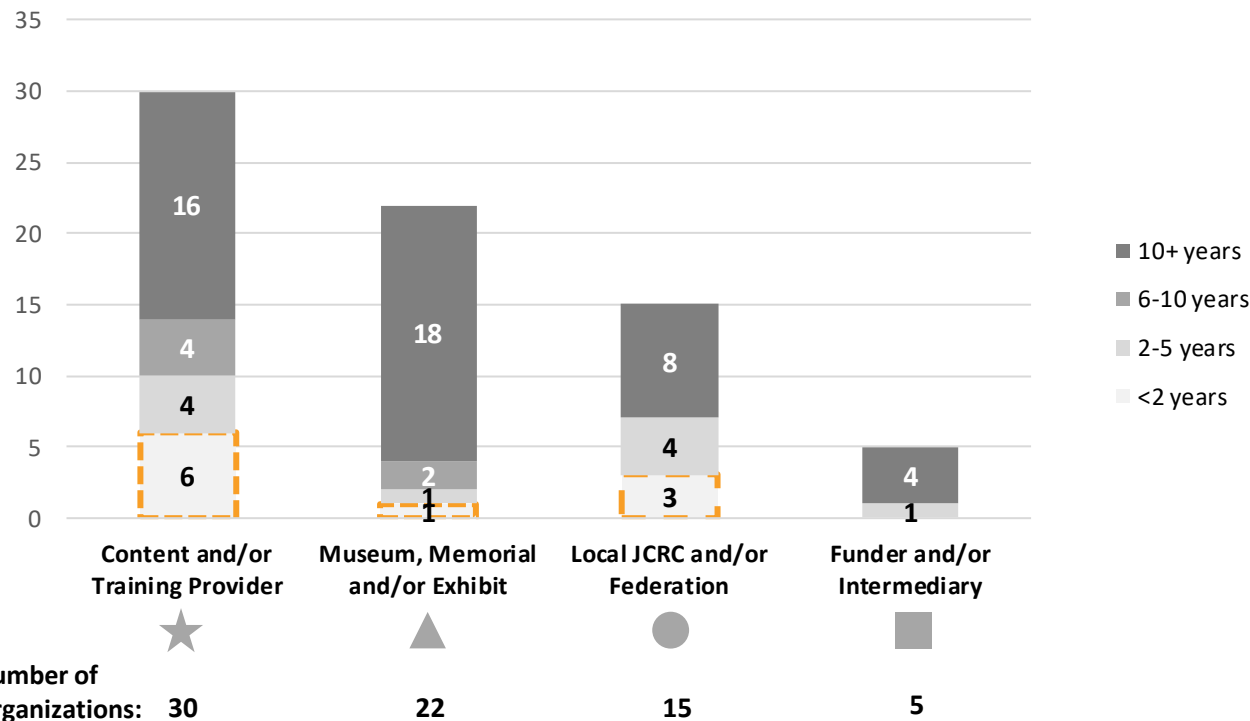

- On average, organizations in the Ecosystem Mapping focus on 2-3 strategies
- Resource development (i.e., Content* and/or PD) are the K-12 Education strategies most commonly employed by organizations
- Of all K-12 strategies specifically asked about, organizations are least likely to say that they engage in formal content reviews (i.e., reviewing existing curricula for facts, tone, etc.; see Section 4 for additional detail)
- About two thirds of organizations that engage in resource development list it as a core competency (i.e., with dedicated staff and budget; may connect to the expertise and resources required to provide high quality offerings)

*Includes organizations that create teaching resources and/or direct-to-student resources

See Section 2 for detailed findings on Content and PD strategies and Section 4 for detailed findings on all other strategies

64% of respondents have at least 10 years of experience in K-12 education; 14% entered the K-12 space in the last 2 years

No. of Organizations, by Length of Tenure in K-12 work

Key Takeaways

■ 46 organizations (64% of respondents) have been engaged in K-12 work for 10+ years

■ 10 organizations (14%) have been engaged in K-12 work for <2 years

- Organizations that function primarily as Content and/or Training Providers and local JCRCs and/or Federations are more likely to be newer to the K-12 space compared to others

The majority of orgs target specific geographic regions with their K-12 Education work, and engage with a variety of school types

No. of Organizations, by Geographic Focus

No. of Organizations, by Target K-12 School Type

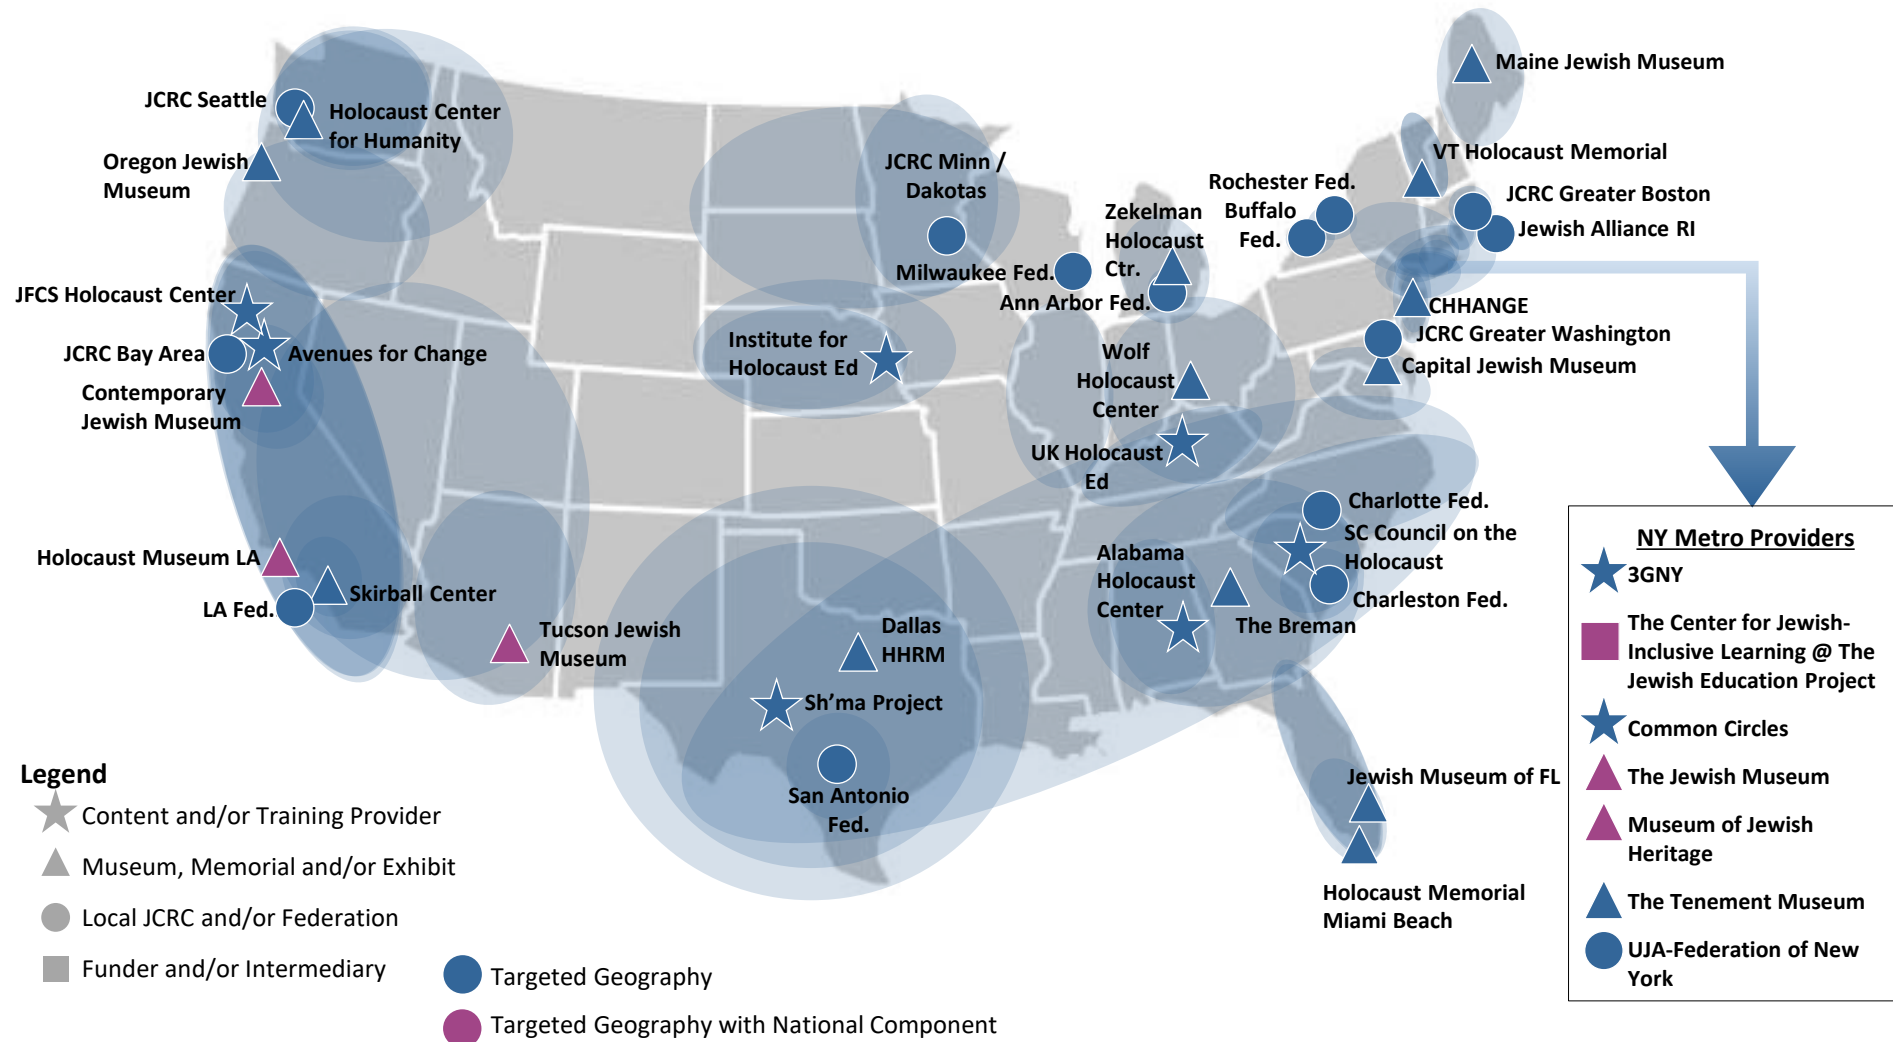

Key Takeaways

- Just over half (39, 54%) of respondents focus exclusively on a targeted geographic region (e.g., state/city) with their K-12 work, while over a third (27, 38%) focus nationally; a smaller share (6, 8%) are primarily local but have some national elements
 - See following slides for more detail
- National players are more likely to focus solely on K-12, while organizations with a targeted geographic scope are more likely to have many organizational priorities (K-12 as top 3 or one of many priorities)
- All organizations report working with Public schools (or public school teachers/students)
- 42 organizations (58%) work with all school types: Public, Private/Independent, Parochial Religious, and Religious (Jewish*) schools

*Note: While this mapping explicitly did not focus on formal education work targeting Jewish youth, we wanted to understand if providers are also targeting these schools

45 organizations target specific geographic areas*, with a heavy concentration focused on New York and California...

...while 27 organizations indicate that their Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education work has a national scope

- TOLI - The Olga Lengyel Institute for Holocaust Studies & Human Rights
- USC Shoah Foundation
- Yad Vashem

Note: many organizations also reference partnering with specific local cultural institutions (e.g., museums, libraries, etc.) and/or their local Federation or JCRC

Key Takeaways

- Connections are very common in the field; among all survey respondents, nearly all cite some form of partnership with other organizations, whether with community organizations, schools, content providers, and/or other members of the Jewish Identity and History in K-12 Education ecosystem
- Across all survey responses, dozens of organizations are cited as collaborative partners; 6 national providers are cited frequently as partners (10+ mentions each)
- Among the organizations that develop content and/or teacher professional development, most develop their own resources, though many also integrate materials from other providers

Section 2: Resource Coverage: Significant Overlap with Select Gaps and Opportunities

Key Takeaways (see following slides for full detail)

High Degree of Overlapping Resource Coverage...

- Topics: The majority of providers offer robust, broad coverage on the Holocaust and Antisemitism (both historic and present-day), with 45+ organizations offering resources (teaching resources, direct-to-student resources, and/or teacher professional development resources) on these topics; the Holocaust and Antisemitism are also the topics with the most extensive offerings (e.g., extended units, lengthy PD)
- Offerings: Lessons and stand-alone resources are the most common teaching resources; presentations and exhibits are most common direct-to-student resources; live (in-person or virtual) lessons under 2 hours are the most common teacher professional development resource offerings
- Implementation: A high proportion of organizations target High School courses with resources, while Middle School courses are slightly less frequently targeted; Social Studies courses are most commonly targeted, followed by English Language Arts courses

...Yet Some Gaps in K-12 Offerings...

- Topics: Some, though not all, organizations offer resources on Judaism and Jewish identity (both American and global), and the fewest number of organizations cover Israel-related topics in their resources (Ancient Israel, the Arab-Israeli conflict, and Zionism/State of Israel)
- Offerings: Across all types of resources, Israel-related topics (Ancient Israel, the Arab-Israeli conflict, and Zionism/State of Israel) have the fewest – and the least extensive – offerings; in general, on-demand teacher PD options are limited
- Implementation: Relatively fewer organizations target Ethnic Studies courses with their resources

...and Opportunity to Increase Reach

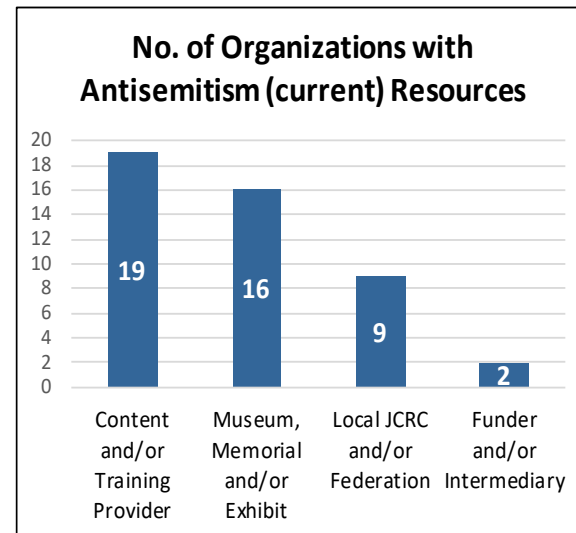

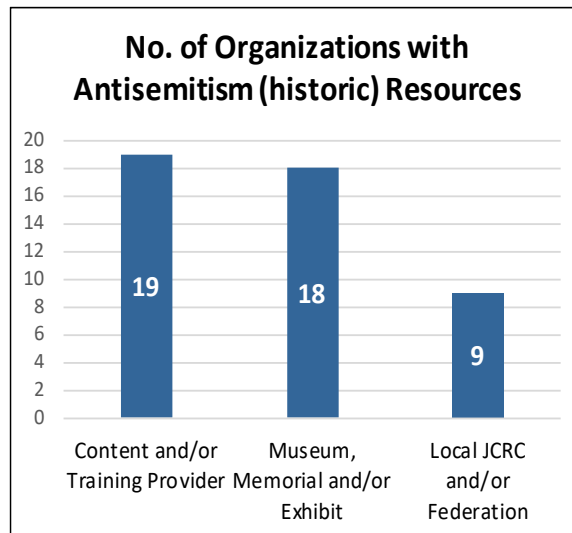

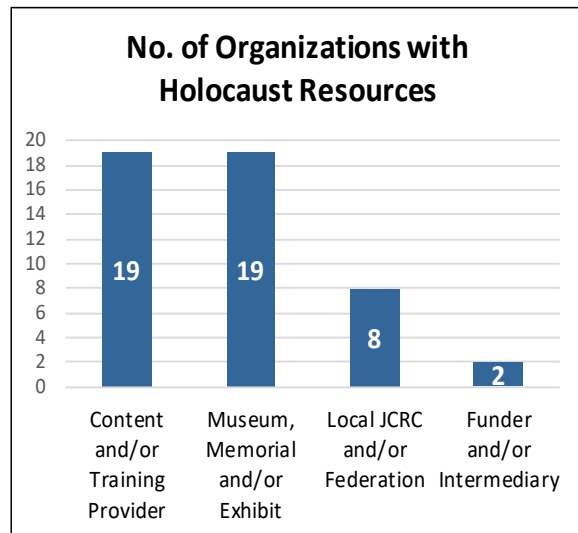

- Among organizations reporting direct-to-student reach numbers, 15 engaged at least 10,000 students with relevant content in the 2023-2024 school year; providers offering virtual content, in-school presentations, or field trips tend to reach large numbers of students
- Among organizations reporting teacher reach numbers, 11 reported reaching more than 1,000 teachers with relevant training and support in the 2023-2024 school year; this may reflect limitations of live PDs and/or organizational focus on local penetration, versus scale
- Significant scale among some providers suggests appetite among potential target audiences for content; there may be opportunity for providers to increase their annual reach, given growing need across the country

Jewish Identity and History Resources are categorized into 3 types; the following slides explore each type in greater depth

Resource Type	Description	Examples	# of Orgs Offering	Slides w/ Detail
1) Teaching Resources*	Curricula, lesson plans, and other tools (e.g., discussion guides) that teachers use in the classroom to educate students on key topics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Extended units • Units • Lesson plans • Stand-alone resources 	46	25-28
2) Direct-to-Student Resources*	Content and/or experiences that students can engage with directly to learn about key topics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Museum and/or traveling exhibits • Presentations (in-school or virtual) • Interactive online games and/or curricula • Online videos 	42	29-31
3) Teacher Professional Development Resources	Opportunities for teachers to gain content knowledge and pedagogical skills to support their classroom instruction on key topics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In-person training • Virtual training • Asynchronous (on-demand) online training • Stand-alone videos • One-off/custom PD 	50	32-36

*Organizations that create either teaching resources or direct-to-student resources were categorized as creating 'Content' on slides 6/13

A review of specific Jewish Identity and History topics shows significant resource coverage* on the Holocaust and Antisemitism...

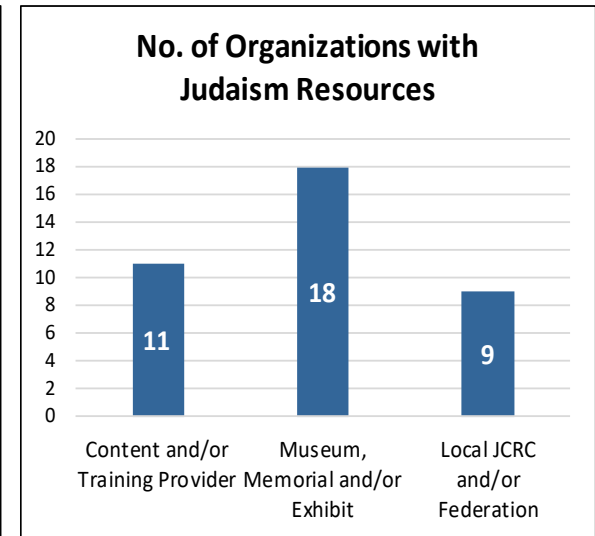

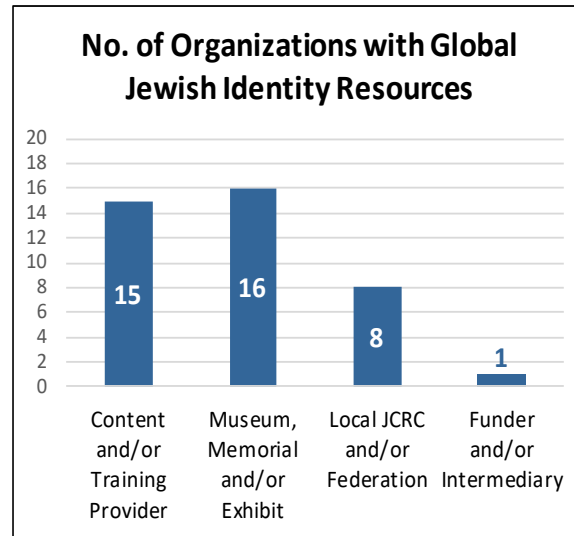

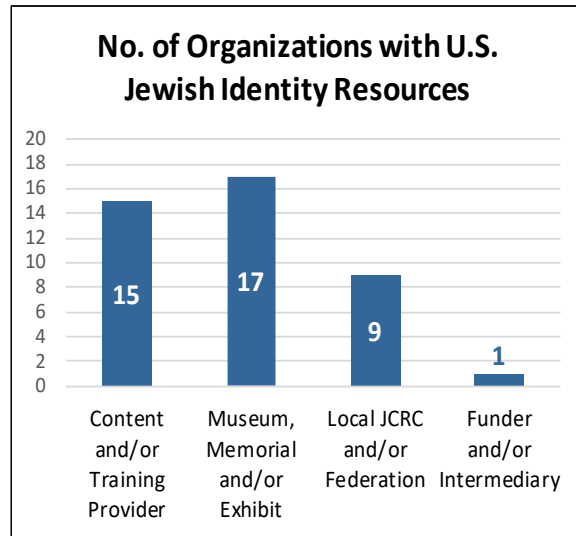

Key Takeaways

- The majority of organizations provide resources (teaching resources, direct-to-student resources, and/or teacher PD resources) on the Holocaust (48), Historic Antisemitism (46) and/or Present-Day Antisemitism (46)
- Significant coverage of the Holocaust and Antisemitism may reflect provider responsiveness to education policies (e.g., state standards, mandates), which tend to focus on these topics and may catalyze increased teacher demand
- While this Ecosystem Report does not include a deep evaluation of resources and strategies to evaluate nuances across offerings, the overlap among organizations likely represents opportunities for improved coordination and knowledge sharing to reduce duplicative efforts

*Excludes orgs that indicated they 'touch on' a particular topic but do not have stand-alone offerings

...while a smaller share of organizations offer resources* on Judaism or Jewish identity...

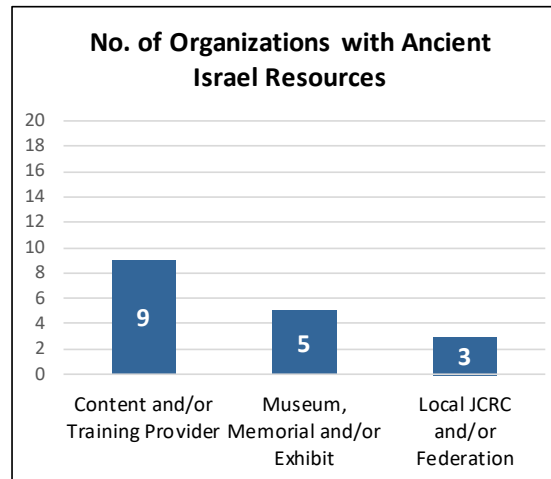

Key Takeaways

- A still significant, but smaller, share of organizations provide resources (teaching resources, direct-to-student resources, and/or teacher PD resources) on U.S. Jewish Identity (42), Global Jewish Identity (40), and/or Judaism (38)
- This suggests that organizations may be educating about Antisemitism and the Holocaust without also providing resources for students and teachers to learn about Judaism and/or Jewish values, identities, and history

*Excludes orgs that indicated they 'touch on' a particular topic but do not have stand-alone offerings

...and the fewest number of organizations offer dedicated resources* for Israel-related topics

Key Takeaways

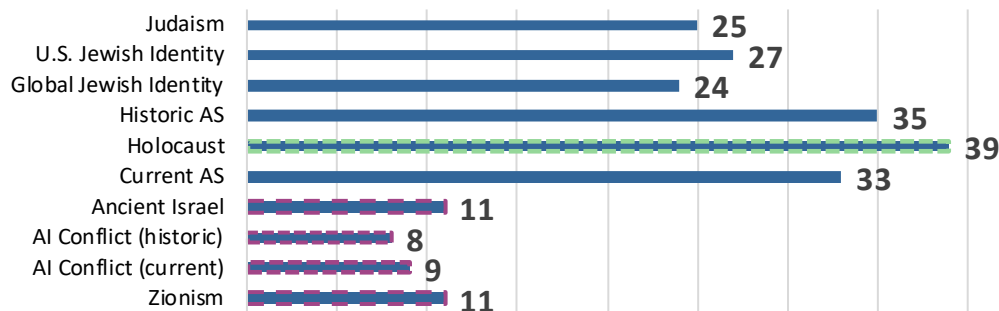

- The smallest share of organizations cover Israel-related topics with their resources (teaching resources, direct-to-student resources, and/or teacher PD resources):
 - Zionism / State of Israel: 25
 - Arab-Israeli Conflict (current): 21
 - Arab-Israeli Conflict (historic): 17
 - Ancient Israel: 17
- With Israel an increasingly contentious and divisive topic among young Americans, there may be a growing need for proactive, nuanced education on Israel and related topics
- This may not indicate a need to create more resources, though, but rather an opportunity for more organizations to integrate existing high-quality Israel-related content into their resources on other topics and share with their networks

*Excludes orgs that indicated they 'touch on' a particular topic but do not have stand-alone offerings

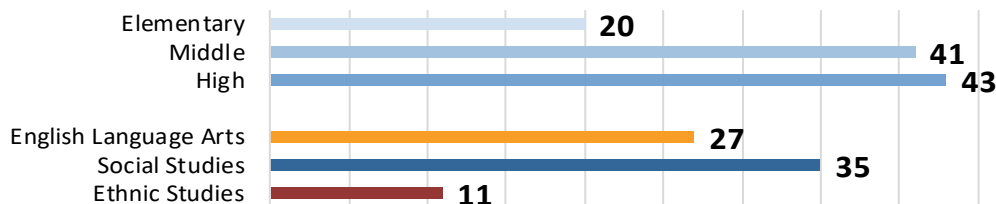

Teaching Resources: Overview

Resource Type	Description	Examples	# of Orgs
1) Teaching Resources	Curricula, lesson plans, and other tools (e.g., discussion guides) that teachers use in their classroom to educate students on key topics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Extended units Units Lesson plans Stand-alone resources 	46

No. of Organizations with Dedicated* Teaching Resources, by Topic

No. of Organizations with Dedicated* Teaching Resources, by Grade & Subject

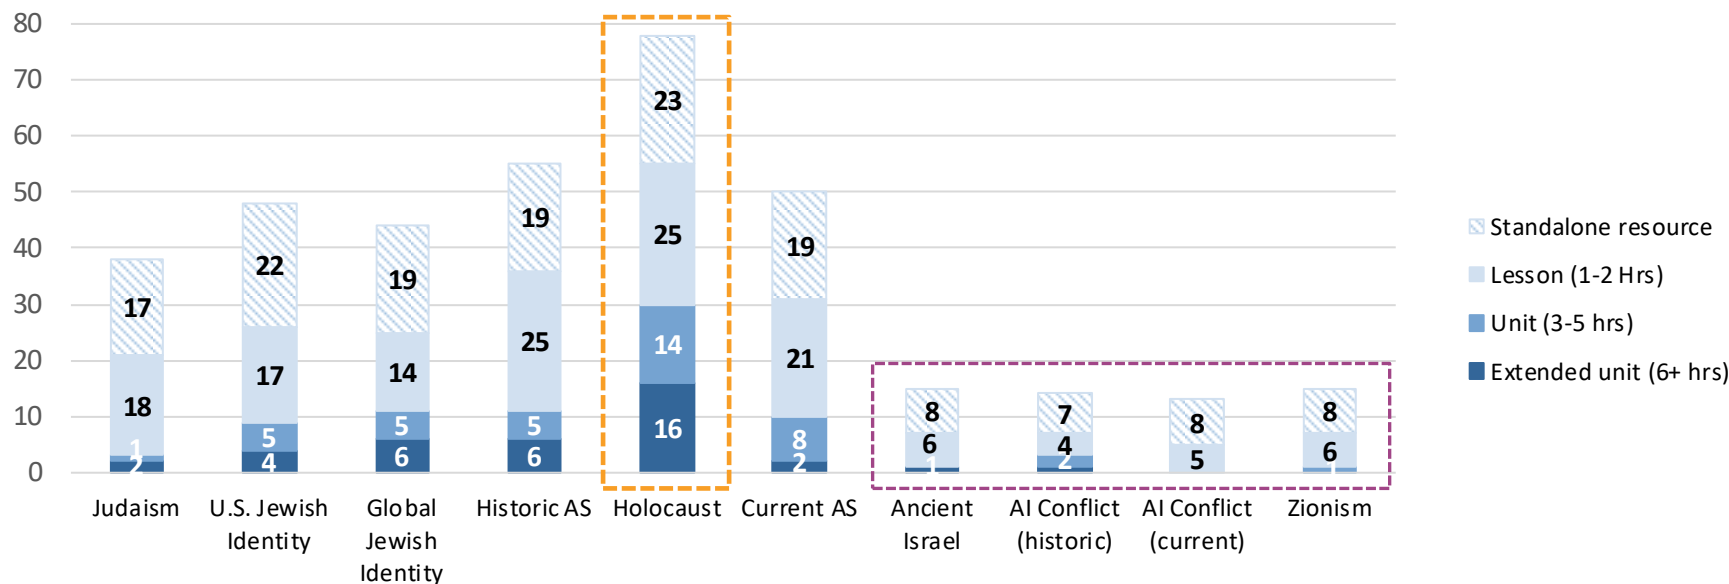

Key Takeaways*

- 46 organizations develop teaching resources; on average, organizations cover ~5 topics with these resources
- Nearly all organizations that create teaching resources offer resources on the Holocaust (39, 85%)
- Fewer organizations that create teaching resources cover topics related to Israel (8-11; 17-24%)
- Nearly all organizations that offer teaching resources target High School and Middle School students; while less common, 43% offer resources for Elementary School classrooms
- Most organizations that develop teaching resources target Social Studies or English Language Arts classes; about a quarter target Ethnic Studies classes with their resources
- Almost all teaching resources are offered free to teachers/schools (may charge for custom resources)

*Excludes orgs that indicated they 'touch on' a particular topic but do not have stand-alone offerings

Lessons and stand-alone resources are the most common available teaching resources; the Holocaust has the most and the lengthiest teaching resources, while Israel-related topics have the fewest and the shortest

No. of Organizations Offering Teaching Resources, by Topic and Resource Type

Key Takeaways

- Lessons and standalone resources are much more frequently offered vs. units or extended units (141 and 150 vs. 41 and 38, respectively); this aligns with the broad understanding that teachers have limited time to spend on most Jewish Identity and History topics
- The Holocaust is the topic most deeply covered by organizations (lesson, unit, extended unit); there are also some robust offerings on Antisemitism
- There are relatively fewer teaching resources available on Israel-related topics (historic and/or current)

Note: See Appendix for full listing of all resources by providing organization

Teaching resources typically target High School and/or Middle School teachers, and are typically intended for Social Studies and/or English Language Arts courses

No. of Organizations with Teaching Resources, by Topic and Grade Level

No. of Organizations with Teaching Resources, by Topic and Subject

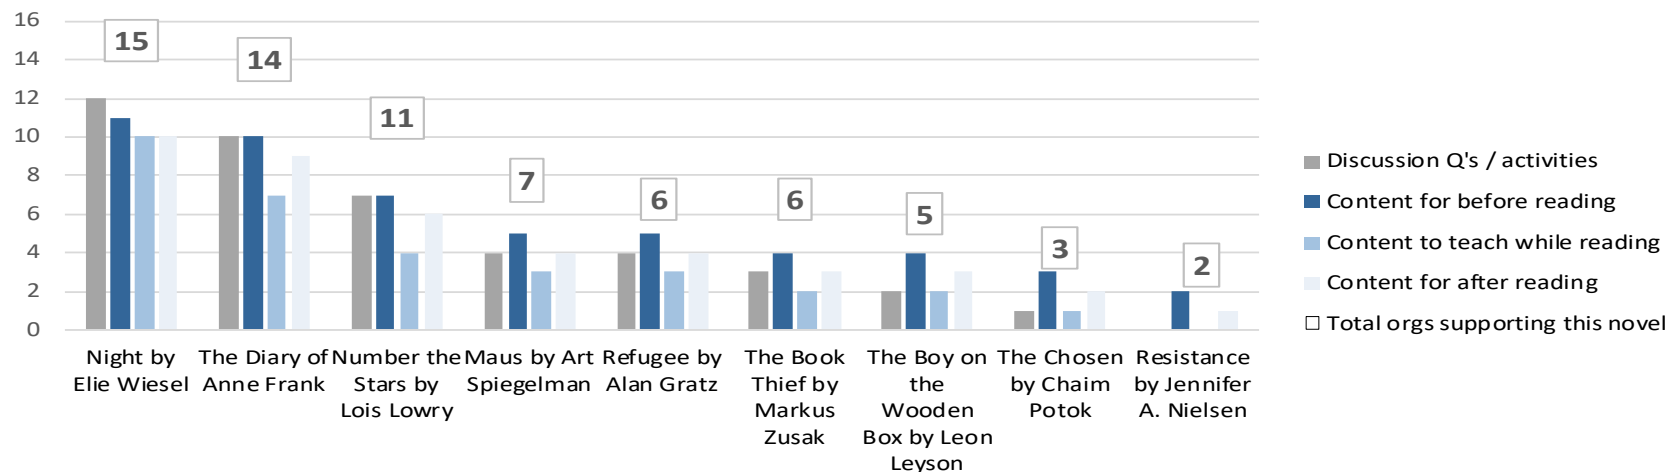

Key Takeaways

- Many teaching resources are targeted at High Schools (179) and Middle Schools (168)
- Fewer teaching resources exist for Elementary Schools (50); those that do tend to cover Judaism, Jewish Identity, or the Holocaust
- Teaching resources skew towards Social Studies courses (151), though there are also many resources targeting English Language Arts (99) courses; fewer resources are specifically targeted at Ethnic Studies courses

Night, The Diary of Anne Frank, Number the Stars are the most common novels supported for English Language Arts courses, though organizations offer a range of teaching resources

No. of Organizations Offering English Language Arts Teaching Resources, By Specific Piece of Literature

Key Takeaways and Additional Context

- 16 organizations reported offering support for specific Jewish Identity and History texts for use in English Language Arts courses; most organizations supported multiple novels and offered various types of support (content for before, during, after reading, etc.)
- Night*, The Diary of Anne Frank, and *Number the Stars are the most common novels supported by those offering content.
- Other books cited: Prisoner B-3087 (Alan Gratz), The Butterfly (Patricia Polacco), White Bird (R. J. Palacio), The Yellow Star House (Paul V. Regelbrugge), More Than Any Child Should Know (Regelbrugge and Julia Thompson), The Children of Willesden Lane (Lee Cohen and Mona Golabek); some local organizations also provide supplemental readings from local survivors or authors
- Various other organizations reported offering a more general approach to helping English Language Arts educators by providing content that is not centered on specific novels and/or supporting local educators with school- or district-required texts
- There may be an opportunity for providers to use high-quality resources targeting English Language Arts courses to ensure that education about Jews and Judaism occurs as part of engagement with commonly-taught literature

Direct-to-Student Resources: Overview

Resource Type	Description	Examples	# of Orgs

No. of Organizations Offering Dedicated Direct-to-Student Resources, by Topic

No. of Organizations Offering Dedicated Direct-to-Student Resources, by Type

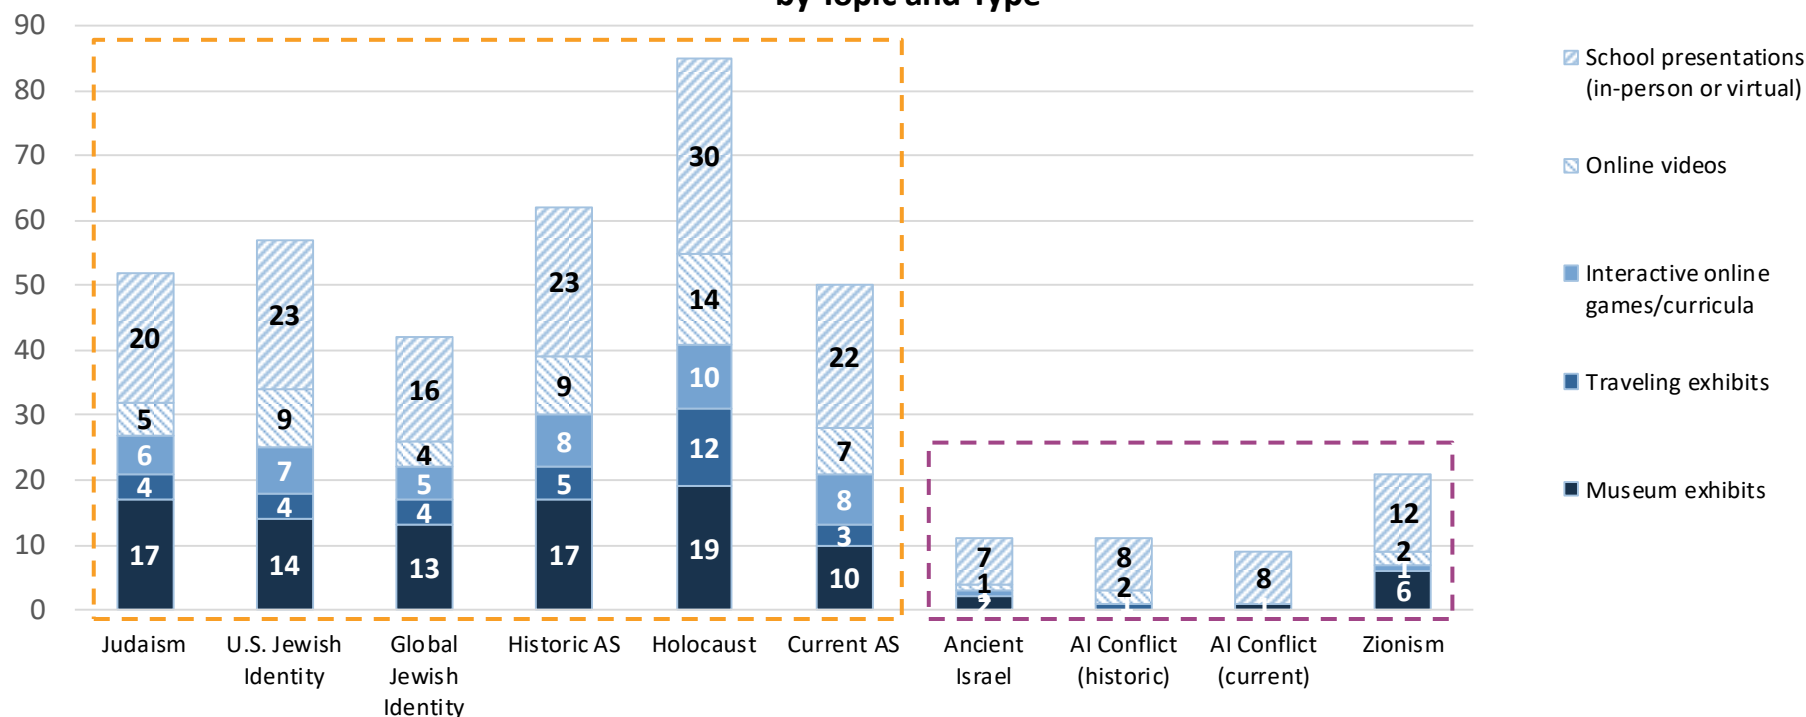

Key Takeaways

- 42 organizations create direct-to-student resources; just under half (20, 48%) of these organizations are Museums, Memorials, and/or Exhibits
- Nearly all organizations that create direct-to-student resources offer resources on the Holocaust (36, 86%)
- Fewer cover the Arab-Israeli conflict (historic or current) (9, 21% each)
- Many organizations that create direct-to-student resources offer in-school or virtual presentations (35, 83%); museum exhibits (21, 50%) and online videos (19, 45%) are the next most popular direct-to-student resources

All Jewish Identity and History topics are covered in direct-to-student resources, though fewer offerings focus on Israel-related topics

No. of Organizations Offering Direct-to-Student Resources, by Topic and Type

Key Takeaways

- Many organizations cover the Holocaust, Jewish American Identity, Global Jewish Identity, Historic and Current Antisemitism and Judaism in direct-to-student resources, especially through exhibits and school presentations
- Fewer organizations touch on Israel-related topics in direct-to-student resources; those that do tend to engage through school presentations (in-person or virtual)

Note: See Appendix for full listing of all resources by providing organization

Among orgs reporting direct-to-student reach numbers*, just over half reached 10,000 students with relevant content last school year

No. of Students Directly Reached With Jewish Identity and History Content, by Org – 2023-2024 School Year

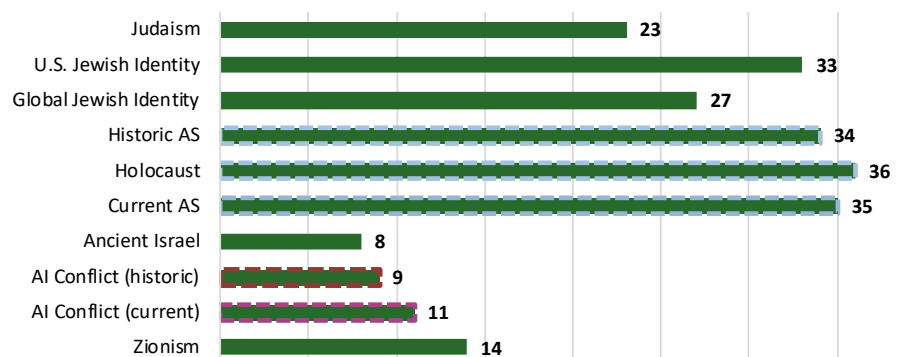

*Numbers reflect students directly reached with Jewish Identity and History content only (may represent a subset of total org reach); not all organizations reporting direct-to-student offerings submitted scale numbers; due to partnerships, there may be overlap in reporting (e.g., students reached by JCRCs may also be counted by Be The Narrative)

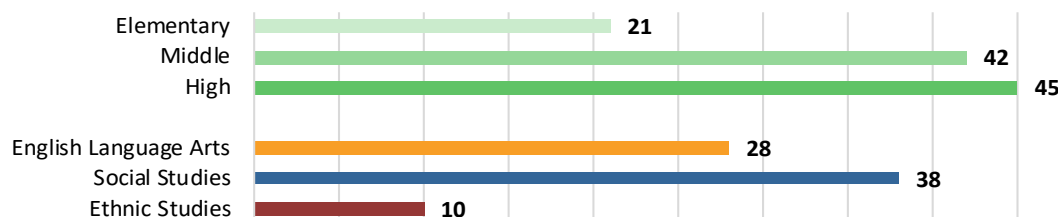

Teacher Professional Development Resources: Overview

3) Teacher Professional Development Resources	Opportunities for teachers to gain content knowledge and pedagogical skills to support their classroom instruction on key topics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> In-person training Virtual training Async. online training Stand-alone videos One-off/custom PD 	50

No. of Organizations Offering Dedicated Teacher PD Resources, by Topic

No. of Organizations Offering Dedicated Teacher PD Resources, by Grade and Subject

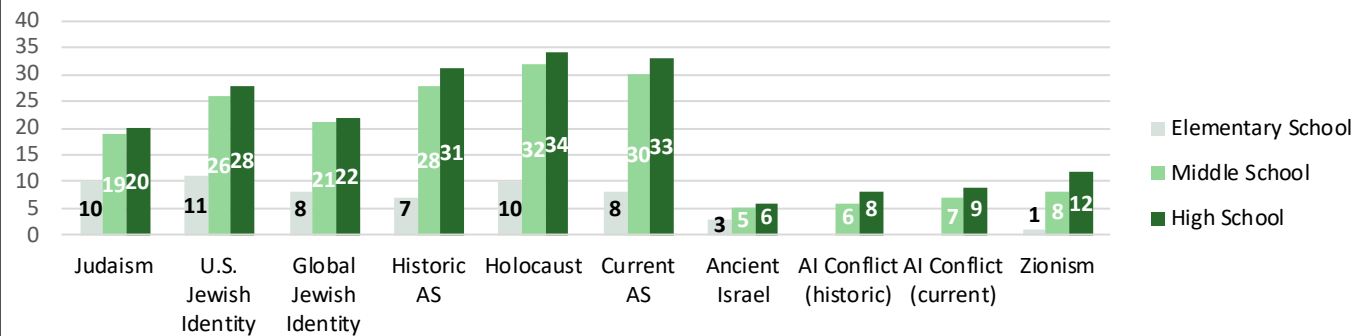

Key Takeaways

- 50 organizations offer professional development resources; on average, organizations cover ~5 topics in their PD resources
- The largest number of organizations provide dedicated PD resources on the Holocaust and Antisemitism (historic and current)
- Few organizations provide dedicated PD resources on the Arab-Israeli Conflict (historic and current), with only 9 and 11 orgs covering these topics, respectively
- Nearly all organizations offer PD resources targeting High School and Middle School courses
- Most organizations target Social Studies courses or English Language Arts courses
- 19 providers offer some sort of official professional development or continuing education credits for their PD; several additional organizations report that they have offered credits through partnerships with other organizations or local districts
- 36 organizations indicate that their professional development resources are free for teachers

*Excludes orgs that indicated they 'touch on' a particular topic but do not have stand-alone offerings

PD resources typically target High School and/or Middle School teachers, and are intended for Social Studies and/or English Language Arts courses

No. of Organizations with Teacher PD Resources, by Topic and Grade Level

Key Takeaways

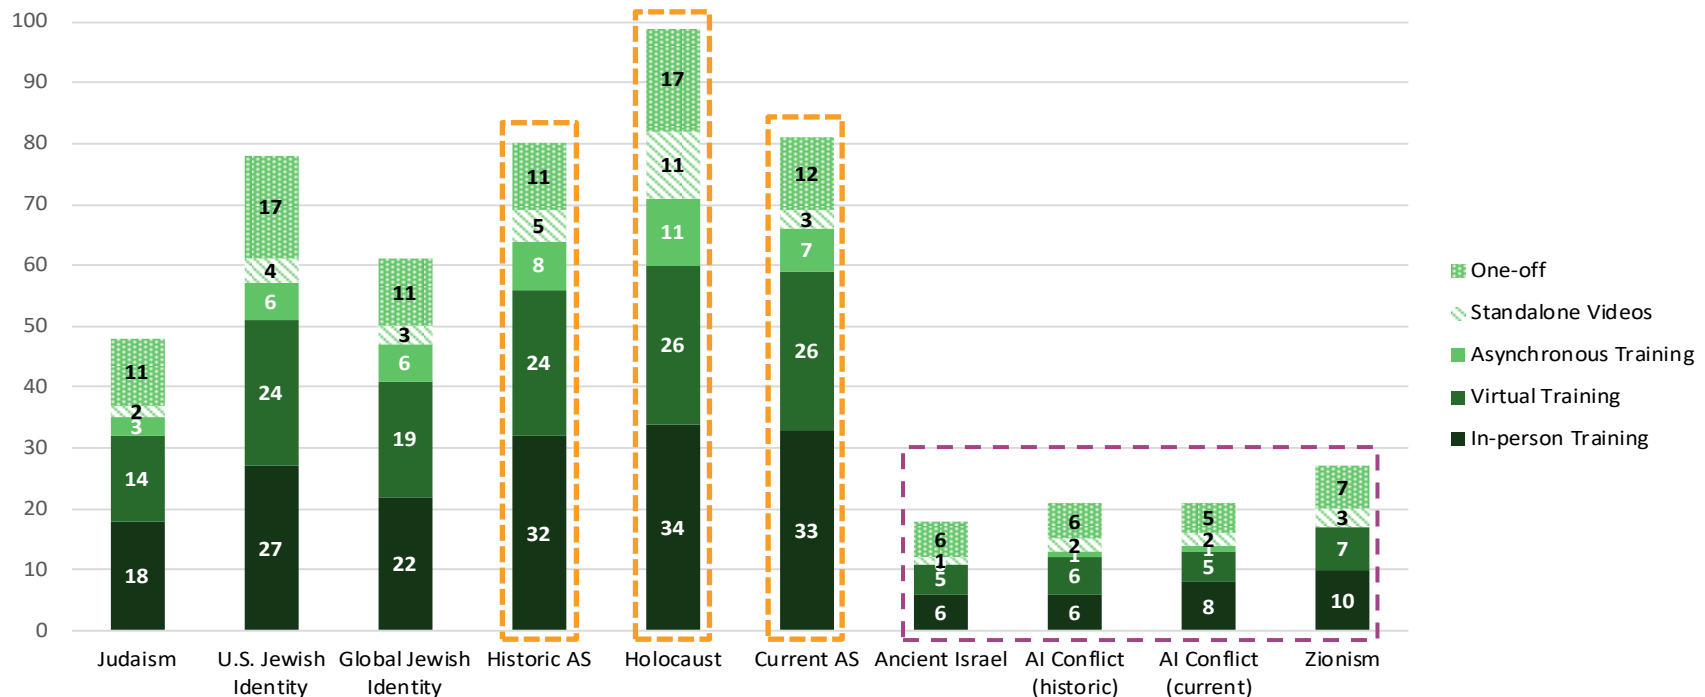

- The highest volume of PD resources target High School teachers, though Middle School teachers are frequently targeted
- Elementary School teacher PD offerings are fewer and cover fewer topics
- Most organizations target Social Studies teachers, though resources for English Language Arts teachers are also common; fewer teacher PD resources target Ethnic Studies courses

No. of Organizations with Teacher PD Resources, by Topic and Subject

Most organizations offer live professional development (in-person or virtual); on-demand options are more limited

No. of Organizations Offering Teacher PD Resources,
by Topic and Resource Type

Key Takeaways

- In-person trainings are the most offered PD type, though many organizations also offer virtual trainings
- There are more limited on-demand PD options (asynchronous online training, standalone videos), which are less interactive but more flexible for educators
- Holocaust and Antisemitism (historic and current) are the topics covered most deeply by orgs (in-person, virtual, asynchronous) with teacher PD resources; as with other resource types, Israel-related topics are the least commonly covered

Note: See Appendix for full listing of all resources by providing organization

Most PD offerings are under 2 hours on most topics, though there are lengthier PD options for the Holocaust

No. of Organizations Offering Teacher PD Resources, by Topic and Length

Key Takeaways

- Most PD offerings are 1-2 hours, though many organizations also offer 3-5 hour PD offerings
- Almost all extended PD offerings (>10 hours) are focused on the Holocaust

Among organizations reporting teacher reach numbers*, 11 reported reaching more than 1,000 teachers with training and support last school year

No. of Educators Directly Reached with Jewish Identity & History-Related Training & Support, by Organization – 2023-2024 School Year

Key Takeaways

- 11 organizations that reported teacher reach numbers reached over 1,000 teachers last year with Jewish Identity and History-related training and support
- High-scale providers include a mix of all organization types, and suggests appetite among potential target audiences for content
- Smaller reach among certain providers may reflect an emphasis on local/regional penetration (rather than scale) and/or the limitations of live PD offerings
- There may be opportunity for providers to increase their annual reach, given growing need across the country

*Numbers reflect teachers reached with Jewish Identity and History training and support only (may represent a subset of total org reach); not all orgs reporting teacher PD offerings submitted scale numbers; due to partnerships, there may be overlap in reporting (e.g., participants reported by E&R may include people reached by Wolf Center and/or VT Memorial)

To distribute content and PD resources, providers rely on partnerships at the school/district level, direct engagement with teachers, and word of mouth

Section 3: Nascent Impact Measurement, with Opportunities for Improvement

Key Takeaways (see following slides for full detail)

Range of Desired Outcomes Across Orgs

- Within their K-12 work, many organizations seek to build knowledge and/or shift mindsets at student and teacher levels, though their specific goals may be vague and lack measurability (e.g., “build foundation of knowledge”)
- Other commonly reported intended outcomes for K-12 work include content adoption and reach, advocacy and systems change, and organizational credibility/strength
- Survey responses suggest that organizations addressing the same topic often define their desired impact differently (e.g., organizations focused on mitigating antisemitism as an intended outcome may measure increased knowledge of antisemitism, enhanced willingness to act, decreased incidents of antisemitism, etc.)

Opportunity to Strengthen Evaluation Frameworks

- While some organizations have developed and implemented robust evaluation frameworks to guide their K-12 education efforts, many organizations have not yet articulated specific, measurable outcomes or corresponding specific metrics/tools to assess the quality and impact of their work
- Many organizations seem to rely on outputs (e.g., the number of students and/or teachers reached annually) or qualitative feedback as their primary indicators of success
- Many organizations expressed a desire to strengthen their organizational muscles around impact evaluation (e.g., more rigorous pre/post evaluation measures with teachers and/or students that track impact on knowledge, attitudes and/or behaviors), and voiced interest in working with others in the field to develop and implement best practices around measurement and evaluation

There is a range of desired outcomes in the field; while some orgs have robust evaluation frameworks, many primarily use output data

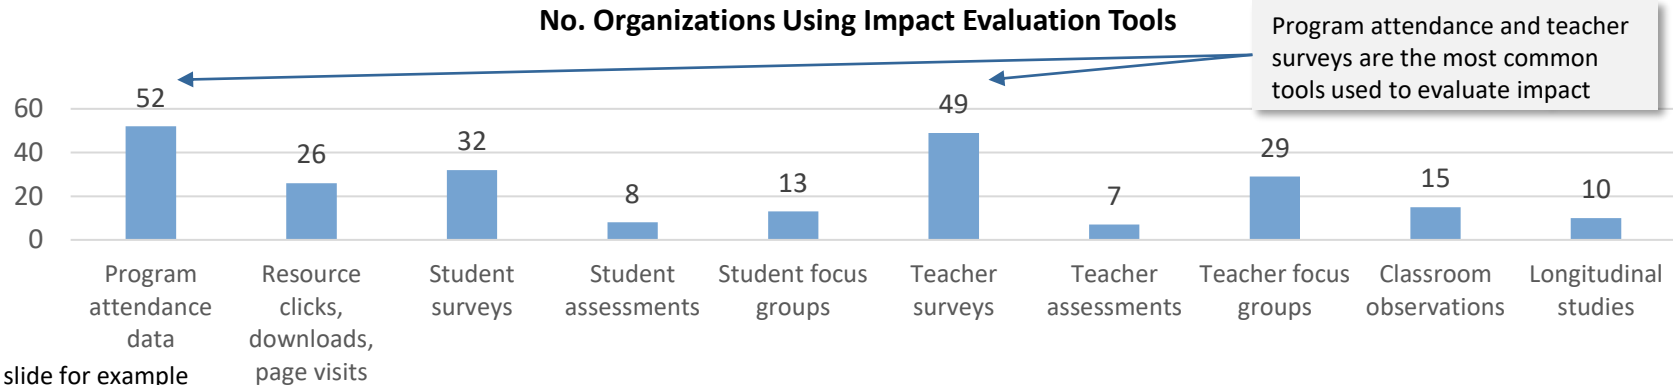

Commonly-Reported Outcome Areas

- 1 Build knowledge and/or shift mindsets at student and teacher levels:
 - Many aim to build knowledge and change mindsets, though goals may be vague (e.g., “build foundation of knowledge”)
- 2 Content adoption and reach:
 - Many orgs aim to increase access to Jewish Identity and History resources and use outputs (e.g., program participation data, content adoption rates) or qualitative reflections to evaluate their impact
- 3 Advocacy and systems change:
 - Orgs, especially those engaged in advocacy, have stated goals (outcomes/outputs) related to systems change
- 4 Organization credibility/strength:
 - Some orgs report goals related to organizational health (hiring, finance) and perceived organizational reputation

Key Takeaways

- While some organizations have robust evaluation frameworks with clear goals and connected measures, many acknowledge they have not yet articulated specific, measurable outcomes or developed corresponding metrics/tools to assess the quality and impact of their work
- Encouragingly, many respondents voiced a desire to strengthen organizational muscles around impact evaluation (e.g., longitudinal pre/post evaluation measures with teachers and/or students that track impact on knowledge, attitudes, and/or behaviors), and interest in working with others to do so
- There may be an important opportunity for rigorous measurement and evaluation across the field to better understand what content and modalities ‘work’ across which outcomes, and for whom

No. Organizations Using Impact Evaluation Tools

*See next slide for example

An example from one organization illustrates best practices to create a robust evaluation framework

Robust evaluation frameworks link organizational goals to specific, measurable outcomes and metrics

In the example below from a surveyed entity, the organization:

- 1 Defines priority strategic directions in its strategic plan and associated outcomes that outline the organization's theory of change
- 2 Defines target goals that are specific and measurable and give the organization a clear way to evaluate progress towards its priorities

Strategic Directions	Outcomes	Goals/Measures
1 Organizational theory of change: "If the organization can increase teachers' knowledge and confidence about teaching, they will spend more time teaching these topics."		2 Specific, measurable goals: "The org will monitor educator survey responses to assess teacher knowledge and confidence. Pre- and post-tests will also be used as a more objective measure of knowledge gains."
Increase educators' knowledge and confidence to teach Jewish topics	Teachers spend more time teaching about Jews, Judaism, Jewish history and experience	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The vast majority of educators surveyed (95%+) will strongly agree or agree that: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> They know more about the topic as a result of training They feel more confident in their ability to teach the topic as a result of training Teachers who participate in an in-depth (5 hours +) professional learning opportunity on a topic will show consistent increases in knowledge from pre- to post-tests
Increase the quality, quantity, and availability of accurate and nuanced instructional materials.	Teachers will use accurate, unbiased instructional materials with students	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Increase the volume of meaningful instructional materials reviewed year over year by X Increase the number of educator and administrator downloads of resources to X by the end of FY25

Organizations addressing the same issue define their desired impact differently; for example, those focused on addressing antisemitism have an array of goals/metrics

	Sub-Category	Example measure (taken from survey responses)	Organization Type
Knowledge	General knowledge	Increase accurate education about Jews, Israel, and antisemitism	Content and/or Training Provider
		Increase awareness of contemporary antisemitism and discrimination	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
		Give students strong foundation in understanding AS and impact of AS today	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
		Expose students to history of antisemitism	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
		Build student empathy and awareness of antisemitism	Content and/or Training Provider
	Knowledge of specific themes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Develop knowledge on major themes related to antisemitism (teachers) Demonstrate knowledge of the concepts of bigotry, AS, and prejudice and their effects on people in history and in the contemporary world (students) 	Content and/or Training Provider
		Increase literacy on Israel-Palestine, antisemitism and the Holocaust, and Jewish history	Content and/or Training Provider
		Increase understanding of how AS shows up in Israel-Palestine discourse	Content and/or Training Provider
	Knowledge about impact	[Develop] awareness of the dangers of stereotyping , propaganda and how rising antisemitism endangers more than just Jews	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
Action	Readiness to act	Help students think critically about their individual and collective roles in standing up to hatred and acting with courage and compassion	Content and/or Training Provider
		[Inspire participants] to create a better world and stand up again AS and hate in all forms	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
		Increase willingness to challenge anti-Jewish ideas	Content and/or Training Provider
		Improve confidence in teaching about antisemitism and hate-based violence	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
		Demonstrate a willingness to act as responsible participants in society , especially against AS and other forms of prejudice	Content and/or Training Provider
	Action	Engage in meaningful discussions about diversity and shared values to reduce instances of bias and antisemitism in schools by fostering an inclusive environment	Museum, Memorial and/or Exhibit
		Achieve measurable reduction in antisemitic incidents in K-12 schools	Local JCRC and/or Federation

Section 4: Other K-12 Strategies

The Ecosystem Mapping survey also collected information on other, non-resource strategies in the K-12 space. For many organizations, these strategies are an important part of their work, while for other organizations they are not within their mandate. See below for summary takeaways and the following slides for detailed information about each strategy.

K-12 Education Advocacy

- With 39% of respondents (28 organizations), advocacy is the most common non-resource K-12 strategy that organizations pursue
- Organizations engaging in advocacy are more likely to be local, which emphasizes the role of local relationships and context when pursuing community-based or state-level advocacy work
- Nearly all local JCRC and/or Federation respondents indicate that they engage in advocacy work; conversely, few Content and/or Training Provider organizations engage in advocacy

K-12 Education Provider Convenings

- 31% of respondents (22 organizations) engage in convening other education providers as either a core or supplemental strategy
- Convening efforts are either national in scope (typically to share best practices; coordinated by a mix of local and national orgs), or regional/local (typically to coordinate local action and led by a local org); local JCRCs and/or Federations are especially active in organizing local convenings

K-12 Content Reviews

- With 19% of respondents (14 organizations), K-12 content reviews are the least common non-resource strategy that organizations report pursuing (mix of local and national players)
- Only a few organizations report engaging in formal state-level or external reviews of curricula or standards
- Most other organizations review content using their own internal criteria before elevating it (either directly to teachers or by providing funding to increase access to the curriculum)

Other K-12 Work

- 15 organizations (21%) engage in other K-12 work not specifically asked about in the survey, including student/family support, mobilization, strategic relationship building, research, and funding

Focus

What do organizations focus on in their Advocacy work?

- State-wide legislation efforts: Most commonly, organizations focus their advocacy efforts on:
 - Passing state-wide Holocaust or Genocide education mandates
 - Improving state educational standards
 - Other legislative efforts, such as passing an antisemitism awareness act and/or working to improve antisemitism incident reporting
- Local influence: Other local entities target advocacy efforts locally to advocate for Jewish inclusion and safety
 - Including Jewish topics in local school/district curricula
 - Engaging local political candidates / elected officials
- Leadership development: Some organizations support others to be advocates, by:
 - Empowering parents and caregivers
 - Developing and empowering student leaders

Some organizations also generally work to promote awareness of Jewish Identity and History topics in their advocacy work

Impact

How do organizations measure impact of Advocacy work?

- Many do not have a formal evaluation structure for this work, but some track legislation passed/sponsored, relationships at state/government level, election results and content adoption

- VT Holocaust Memorial

Focus

What do organizations focus on in their Convening work?

- National/international Convenings: Various entities convene organizations from across the country and/or around the world to share best practices and resources
- Local Convenings: Some organizations convene local entities to support improved coordination towards shared goals; this is an especially common strategy for Federations/CRCs
- PD delivery: Some organizations report coordinating with other entities on professional learning for educators as part of PD work

Impact

How do organizations measure impact of Convenings?

- Evaluation of convenings often focuses on # of attendees, participant feedback (via surveys), and engagement levels

Focus

What do organizations focus on in their Content Review work?

- State-level or External Reviews: Some organizations participate in state-level or external reviews of materials, curriculum frameworks, or content standards to advocate for Jewish Identity and History in content or standards and/or identify errors, misinformation, or bias
 - Select national organizations work with education publishers, large agencies, and state departments to review content; they may partner with local organizations to do this work (e.g., local CRCs)
 - Local organizations (e.g., Museums, CRCs) occasionally sit on state committees or task forces to review content or standards
- Org-level Reviews: Various organizations review content before funding or distributing it to educators, and/or as part of incident response protocol; these organizations use internal criteria or rubrics to evaluate content

Impact

How do organizations measure impact of Content Reviews?

- State-level or external reviews: Successful adoption of organization's content recommendations
- Org-level reviews: Use of materials evaluated and recommended/funded/elevated

Section 5: Potential Opportunities For Greater Impact

Given findings, there are multiple potential opportunities for greater impact

1) Strengthen The Field to Reduce Duplication and Fragmentation

- It is clear that there are dozens of high-quality providers operating in the field of Jewish identity and history through K-12 Education, that some providers are reaching thousands of students and/or teachers annually, and that there is a rich array of resources and content available for student and teacher use on Jewish identity and history-related topics
- At the same time, these findings suggest the landscape is highly diffused and fragmented, with many organizations offering a significant amount of potentially overlapping content on key topics
- While partnerships and collaborations already exist, improved coordination and knowledge sharing appears essential to reduce duplicative efforts

2) Deepen Focus on Specific, Measurable Outcomes and Rigorous Impact Evaluation

- Our findings suggest that there is more work to be done at organizational- and field-levels to articulate a clear vision and specific, measurable intended outcomes for high-quality education on Jewish identity and history-related topics; to identify the specific core concepts that should be addressed to achieve progress against these outcomes; to ensure the availability of high-quality content across these concepts; and to then rigorously evaluate the impact of existing efforts
- A strategic commitment to measurement and evaluation across the field will be critical in order to identify and scale the highest-quality, most impactful interventions and resources that reduce antisemitism and promote Jewish inclusion and safety

3) Consider Demand and Implementation

- The field should continue to consider the many constraints and competing priorities that teachers and administrators face when offering education on Jewish identity and history-related topics
- Providers should be laser-focused on creating resources that reflect what educators want, need, and are willing to use; on optimizing the highest-quality resources that already exist, rather than crowding the marketplace by adding new resources; and on articulating specific target audience(s) for their unique offerings
- Navigation is an enormous issue for educators, who find it difficult to find quality resources and discern which are suitable for the number of hours they teach, the subject they teach, and their teaching objectives. Many teachers source content by searching online, a reality that can compromise finding suitable high-quality content. Providers must therefore be dogged about identifying the best distribution strategies to ensure high-quality, high-fidelity implementation of their resources

Hate Ends Now does not offer professional development for teachers, though educators do participate in the exhibit while it is on site.

Other K-12

Convening:

- Hate Ends Now convened superintendents and teachers in MA, TX, and FL, to coordinate its work with schools.

Notable Offerings

- ✓ Hate Ends Now's exhibit uses immersive, experiential learning to teach the Holocaust and its relevance to modern-day antisemitism, intolerance, and racism.
- ✓ The traveling exhibit, housed in a replica WWII-era cattle car, provides a 360-degree multimedia presentation and original Holocaust artifacts, making history innovative, high-tech, tangible, and impactful. The presentation inside the exhibit and the artifact collection are ~30 minutes each but can be customized.
- ✓ Target market are students that would not otherwise have access to this type of educational opportunity: ideally rural areas as well as major metropolitan cities.
- ✓ Currently, daily capacity is 250 students for the full presentation and 600+ for the abridged version. Aims to double its student reach in the next 2 years.

Content Review:

- ICS reviews instructional materials from top K-12 education publishers and large education agencies, as well as state content standards (Social Studies, Ethnic Studies), to ensure accurate information regarding Jews, Judaism, Jewish history, and Israel.

Notable Offerings

- ✓ ICS emphasizes teaching with primary sources and maps (has commissioned maps on the Arab-Israeli conflict), preparing educators to be informed consumers of information, and supporting educators to teach students how, not what, to think.
- ✓ Most content is designed for 1 class period (Arab-Israeli conflict content incl. 5 lessons but lessons can be used independently). PD ranges from 1-5 hours, with some longer in-person and asynchronous online options (e.g., Summer Institutes on Arab-Israeli Conflict, Jewish History, online courses)
- ✓ Deep expertise in Ethnic Studies.

Provider Overview: Israeli American Council (IAC)

Org Overview

IAC's mission is to unite and engage Israeli-Americans, strengthen Jewish identity, and deepen the bond between the U.S. and Israel. IAC fights antisemitism in school environments through education and relationship building. IAC provides training and resources for educators related to modern-day antisemitism (including anti-Zionism), how to fight it in the school setting, and how current events impact Jewish and Israeli-American students in their schools. IAC also supports community mobilization around incidents of antisemitism in K-12 schools.

Advocacy:

- VT Holocaust Memorial advocates for a local Holocaust education mandate; has advocated for and initiated 4 bills over the past 3 years.

Notable Offerings

- Students in VT are not required to learn about the Holocaust. The Vermont Holocaust Memorial is the only Vermont-based Holocaust educational organization that works with local secondary teachers, schools, and communities to bring Holocaust lessons to Vermonters.
- The org website has a curated list of resources from national and local organizations, including USHMM, E&R, AJC, Lappin Foundation, Centropa, FHOA, ADL and more; includes teaching guidelines, virtual museum visits, podcasts, lesson plans, video archives, etc.

Provider Overview: The Weitzman National Museum of American Jewish History

Org Overview

The Weitzman National Museum of American Jewish History on Independence Mall in Philadelphia presents educational programs and experiences that preserve, explore, and celebrate the history of Jews in America. Standing as a joyful bulwark against antisemitism, bigotry, and hate, The Weitzman serves to connect Jews more closely to their heritage and to inspire in people of all backgrounds a greater appreciation for the diversity of the American Jewish experience and the freedoms to which Americans aspire.

Notable Offerings

- ✓ Developing/piloting “Stories That Shaped a Nation” – a new curriculum and fellowship program for public school teachers covering Jewish people and peoplehood. Currently testing in Davis, CA; Lower Merion, PA; and w/ Gratz College students. Once finalized, curriculum will be available for free on the web.
- ✓ Partners include: ADL, ICS, JCRC of Minn/Dakotas, USC Shoah Foundation, Citizen Films, Beth El Civil Rights Experience, HS Law Review, Gratz College, and others.
- ✓ Other topics covered include allyship, identity development, personal reflection, customs, and beliefs beyond the Jewish community. The Weitzman typically uses Jews and American Jewish history as an entry point into those topics through both the new curriculum & existing signature programs such as Becoming American/Traveling Suitcase and Courageous Choices.

Provider Overview: The Zekelman Holocaust Center

Org Overview

The Zekelman Holocaust Center is the nexus for Holocaust education in the state of Michigan. Zekelman teaches the Holocaust by focusing on the experiences of the victims and survivors rather than a perpetrator-centered story. The goal of Zekelman's programming is to educate visitors about the history of the Holocaust and to empower them to find ways to take meaningful action in our world today.

Alabama Holocaust Education Center, Centropa, Charleston Jewish Federation

Alabama Holocaust Education Center

Org Overview

The Alabama Holocaust Education Center educates about the history and lessons of the Holocaust to create a more just and compassionate world recognizing the humanity of every individual. The Center's core competencies include curriculum development, helping teachers in their classrooms, creating student experiences, and educating the entire community.

 Org Focus: Varied (K-12 is top 3 priority); Varied (not only JIH topics)
 Tenure: 6-10 years  Scope: Alabama, with some national reach

Centropa

Org Overview

Centropa runs professional development for teachers using 1,200 interviews it held with elderly Jews in 15 Central & Eastern European countries, and 23,000 old family photographs it digitized. Centropa runs seminars, webinars, and an annual trip to Europe (up to 70 teachers from 16 countries) for teachers to study 20th c. Jewish history and create cross-cultural projects with each other. Centropa maintains that teachers can't only teach how Jews were murdered in the Holocaust, but also how they lived before—and then offers them the resources to do that within the short amount of time they often have.

 Org Focus: K-12 only; JIH topics only
 Tenure: 10+ years  Scope: United States, Europe, and Israel

Charleston Jewish Federation

Org Overview

The Charleston Jewish Federation's mission is to build, secure, and sustain Jewish life in Charleston, in Israel, and around the world. The Federation believes that the best way to fight hate, and antisemitism is through education. It works to bring needed resources to teachers, including information on Judaism, antisemitism, the Holocaust and more, through partnering with local and national organizations.
